

Parliament and The Kensington

Reforming Chicago Nightlife in the Eyes of All Who Attend

CHICAGO (June 2013)—Setting a new precedent for Chicago's nightlife, Parliament and The Kensington are taking over and amending the existing laws. Opening summer 2013, this exclusive club and lounge will elevate Chicago's evenings to a new level, integrating contemporary style with timeless class.

Parliament

From the moment one enters Parliament, guests are greeted with incomparable elegance. The shape of the front of the house provides a space for guests to mix and mingle amongst elevated booths with tufted leather seating featuring Parliament's signature bottle service. Lending itself to the see and be seen crowd, the room offers unobstructed views of other guests from every vantage, with the focal point being the VIP booths in the center of the chamber floor beneath an expanse of a shimmering chandelier. When featuring headlining talent, Chicago's elite will be whisked away as the DJ takes the floor. Accented by lacquered gold highlights and bold art and imagery, the interior of Parliament is nightlife's newest setting.

Moving through the space, the ceilings immediately elevate to new heights accentuated by the bold wall patterns, inviting guests' eyes to view the glass elevator which takes center stage. The space allows additional seating for guests as well as a bar area with a champagne cooler serving as the back wall. Through the countless champagne bottles, limited views of what lay beyond are available, as Parliament's additional secrets remain unknown.

The Kensington

The glass elevator ride with a view of Parliamentary procedure below is a hint of the elegance that waits above at The Kensington, intended for guests looking to take their evening to new heights. The rooftop lounge, accessible from street level as well as inside of Parliament, is designed with Chicago in mind, offering panoramic views of the Windy City skyline above with an eye-popping chevron print at guests' feet.

Bold patterns accent the many booths complemented by large pillows, perfect for enjoying after work cocktails or libations before a night on the town. Raised greenery divides seating areas, beneath larger than life lampshades offering an intimate ambiance as the sun sets. Guests are invited to mingle by the bar beneath a decorative overhang allowing additional shade during the warm summer months.

Whether before a night on the town, an intimate evening for two or cocktails after work, The Parliament and The Kensington will call Chicago home and offer lucky guests the chance to “take a seat” and join the very un-routine proceedings. This venue will combine Old English class with American swag for late night sessions not to be missed.

This meeting is adjourned.
